

Luc d'Abadie

“Success after college is a direct result of decisions made in college.”

Luc d'Abadie travels the continent alongside his business partner, Andrew Hewitt, with the mission of helping students discover and reach their full potential. Luc graduated with an honors degree in Math and Business from the University of Waterloo. A few of his many college experiences include starting two well known professional development clubs, being awarded multiple scholarships, competing in international business plan competitions and selling BlackBerry® handhelds in Europe to Fortune 500 companies. He has also been featured in newspapers and magazines across North America, including the Chicago Tribune, Denver Post, Detroit Free Press, Calgary Herald and Canadian Business Magazine for his entrepreneurial achievements and networking creativity.

In addition to being a bestselling author of The Power of Focus for College Students, Luc has written a novel and distributes an inspirational e-column to subscribers in over ten countries. He is also the co-creator of Start Right! How to Launch a Great Career, a 3 CD audio album and home study course distributed through Trump University. Luc spends the majority of his time sharing success strategies with students from around the world through summer programs, one-on-one dream coaching, and speaking as a youth motivator on the college circuit.
